A Message from California Association of Healthcare Leaders:

As a healthcare professional organization, the health of our members and communities is our top priority. With the rapidly evolving situation with COVID-19, we want to assure you that we are monitoring events surrounding this situation in relation to all CAHL events.

While we understand the need for social distancing, we are also aware of the need for support to those on the front lines. With this in mind we will be organizing virtual networking and town hall meetings to provide a place for healthcare leaders to share their successes, fears, challenges and solutions. Please be on the look out for further communication and invitations to these events in the near future.

With an eye toward progress, we continue our planning efforts for CAHL Congress scheduled for August 2020. We will vigilantly monitor the situation and take into consideration the advice of local and public state health officials in deciding the course of the event, although, ever hopeful, it is our desire for the event to take place as planned. You can learn more about CAHL Congress & Annual Awards and how to register for the event at https://ache-cahl.org/congress/

Also during this time we extend our thanks to the true heroes, healthcare workers, first responders and essential workers who put their lives at risk each and every day to keep us all as safe and healthy as possible. We are forever in your debt.
